Like its predecessor, "Cardcaptor Sakura: Clear Card" is directed by Morio Asaka, with screenplay written by Nanase Ohkawa of Clamp. The original Japanese cast returns to reprise their roles in this 22-episode series. An original video animation titled "Sakura and the Two Bears" was premiered at Anime Expo in 2017 and later released as a DVD bundled with the special edition of volume 3 of the manga. The anime series aired from January to June 2018 on NHK BS Premium, simulcasted by Crunchyroll with English subtitles and dubbed by Funimation. The opening theme for episodes 1-12 is "Clear" by Maaya Sakamoto, while the ending theme is "Jewelry" by Saori Hayami. From episode 13 onwards, the opening theme changes to "Rocket Beat" by Kiyono Yasuno, with the ending theme being "Rewind" by Minori Suzuki. Fans of the original series can now stream all 22 episodes of "Cardcaptor Sakura: Clear Card" on Netflix in the Philippines. However, it's worth noting that the original anime series is not yet available on the platform in this region.The sequel series Cardcaptor Sakura: Clear Card started its serialization in Nakayoshi magazine with July 2016's issue. It is a Japanese shojo manga written and illustrated by the renowned group CLAMP. The story picks up where The Sealed Card movie left off, following Sakura as she begins junior high school. She soon discovers that her fifty-three cards have "turned clear," rendering them powerless. Alongside her friends Syaoran, Tomoyo, and new transfer student Akho, Sakura sets out to uncover the reason behind this phenomenon. Meanwhile, a powerful magician is waiting for the right moment to take advantage of the situation. In the process, Sakura and her allies encounter new Clear Cards and work together to "secure" them. The story also explores the relationship between characters like Syaoran and Akho, who has her own guardian and caretaker Kaito. Kaito's recovery is being taken care of by Kaho Mizuki, who also happens to be his former teacher and Touya's ex-girlfriend. She's close friends with Eriol and has helped him numerous times in preparing Sakura for transforming the Clow Cards into her own cards, which she shares a romantic connection with. On the other hand, we have Rika Sasaki - an old friend of Sakura's who later attends another school but returns to give Sakura an Alice in Wonderland book that ultimately finds its way to Akho. Since then, she's been known to be taller and slimmer due to the two-year time gap since the original anime. Then there's Spinel Sun, Cerberus' feline counterpart, who boasts the ability to breathe red fire and fly using his wings. Ruby Moon is another character created by Eriol's powerful moon magic; she has the capacity to generate sharp projectiles of pink crystals similar to Yue's gray crystal projectiles. Moving on, we have Momo, a small rabbit-like creature brought forth by Kaito's supreme magic, designed to aid him in realizing his heart's desire. Her purpose is akin to Spinner and Keroberos, aiming to safeguard Kaito and assist him in achieving his deepest wish. Furthermore, Wang Wei, the former caretaker of Syaoran Li and Meiling, has returned to Hong Kong after Syaoran became old enough to live independently in Japan. Quadruplet Sisters, being identical quadruplets who share a close bond with Syaoran, frequently overwhelm him with an onslaught of food pictures via email. Lastly, we have Lillie Shinomoto - Akho's mother who had passed away before the start of the series when Akho was just an infant. She shared a special friendship with Yuna D., Kaito, and even Nadeshiko during their younger years; it is believed that she may have predicted the eventual friendship between her daughter and Nadeshiko's daughter - referring to them as "the two Alices."
